

Royal Navy Gunnery Badges worn by Royal Marines (Version 5.2)

By Mark Phillips

INTRODUCTION

The purpose of this paper is to describe and list Royal Naval Gunnery badges that were worn by the Royal Marines from the period from 1890 to 1974, when Gunnery badges ceased to be officially issued for wear by Royal Marines.

In the process of describing and listing the Royal Marine Gunnery badges it has been necessary to describe and list the Royal Naval Gunnery badges, because Royal Marines Gunnery badges are very close to and in most cases the same as the Royal Navy Gunnery badges.

The primary focus of the paper has been to provide images of Gunnery badges, when a badge was introduced (with references and dates), when a badge was discontinued (with references and dates) and the stock/vocabulary number of a badge.

All the information in this paper comes from official Royal Navy and Royal Marines documents; General Orders (GO), Admiralty Fleet Orders (AFO), Admiralty Uniform and Clothing Committee Minutes (AUCC), Royal Marine Routine Orders (RMRO) and Dress Regulations (BR).

It should be understood that Royal Marine Gunnery badges were worn long after an official document ordered the cessation of a Gunnery rate or badge, as a Royal Marine would continue to wear a Gunnery badge for the duration of his career.

DESCRIPTION

1890-1899

First mention, in official documents of RMA and RMLI Gunnery badges was in the Clothing Price List of the General Orders April 1890. The following three gunnery badges were described. There is no indication whether the Gunnery was for land or ship based guns:

- Crossed Guns Crown & Grenade – Gold on Blue (RMA First Sergeant Instructor)
- Crossed Guns & Grenade – Gold on Scarlet (RMA Second Sergeant Instructor)
- Crossed Guns & Crown - Gold on Scarlet (RMLI First & Second Sergeant Instructor)

GO 22 of May 1891 introduced another badge for all other RMA and RMLI instructors:

- Crossed Guns – Gold on Blue, Gold on Scarlet (RMA & RMLI All other Instructors)

The same badges are mentioned in GO 41 August 1892 and GO 79 1892, until GO32 May 1893 when Crossed Guns Gold and Worsted was introduced.

GO 40 in May 1894 saw the introduction of Crossed Guns & Grenade (RMA Second Sergeant Instructor) and the Crossed Guns & Crown (RMLI First & Second Sergeant Instructor) in Gold on Blue consistent with the other Gunnery Instructor badges.

In 1897 GO 27 saw the removal of the Crossed Guns & Grenade (RMA Second Sergeant Instructor) badge, and in July of the same year GO 63 described the introduction of a new pattern, size and design change for the Gunnery Instructor badges.

In August 1899 GO 51 stated that First Sergeant Instructors to be termed Quartermaster-Sergeant Instructor of Gunnery.

1900-1919

GO 27 of March 1905 stated that the RMA and RMLI Gunnery distinguishing badges (for ship based gunnery) would be similar in pattern to those worn by Seaman RN. These would be:

- Gunnery Instructors
- Turret Sightsetter
- Gunlayer
- Sightsetter

The next General Order 28 also of March 1905 described the new Gunnery badges to be worn for RMA and RMLI Marines qualified in RN ship based Gunnery.

Qualification	Badge	Type
Gunnery Instructor if also Turret Gunlayer (From 1909 Gunner's Mate, if also Gunlayer 1 st Class)	Crossed Guns Crown and Star Above and Star Below	Gold on Blue, Red on Blue, Blue on White
Gunnery Instructor if not Turret Gunlayer (From 1909 Gunner's Mate, if not Gunlayer 1 st Class)	Crossed Guns Crown and Star Above	Gold on Scarlet, Gold on Blue, Red on Blue, Blue on White
Gunlayer (From 1909 Gunlayer 2 nd Class)	Crossed Guns Star Above	Gold on Scarlet, Gold on Blue, Red on Blue, Blue on White

Gunner	Gun Star Above	Gold on Scarlet, Gold on Blue, Red on Blue, Blue on White

GO 24 in 1906 introduced the following badge:

Qualification	Badge	Type
Turret Gunlayer (From 1909 Gunlayer 1 st Class)	Crossed Guns Star Above and Star Below	Gold on Scarlet, Gold on Blue, Red on Blue, Blue on White

Gunnery Instructor
if also Gunlayer

Gunnery Instructor
if not Gunlayer

Turret Gunlayer
(from 1909 Gunlayer 1st Class)

Gunlayer
(from 1909 Gunlayer 2nd Class)

Turret Sightsetter
(Obsolete in 1909) (replacement)

Gunner

GO 23 in 1909, replaced the Turret Sightsetter badge (Gun Star Above and Star Below Badge) with the Crossed Guns badge, which had versions in Gold on Scarlet, Gold on Blue, Red on Blue, Blue on White.

In 1916 GO 20 stated that Quartermaster-Sergeant Instructors of Gunnery were to become Warrant Officers Class II.

GO 201 in September 1918 introduced Rangetakers badges for wear by qualified ship based Rangetakers.

In February 1919 GO 28 introduced new badges to be worn by Warrant Class II (Quartermaster Sergeant Instructor of Gunnery).

GO 133 of the 6th September 1921 described the land based Artillery badges worn by the RMA. There were, Layers Badge, Rangetakers Badge and Field Survey Badges.

Artillery Gunlayer

Artillery Rangetaker

Artillery Surveyor 2nd Class

Artillery Surveyor 1st Class

GO 21 of February 1923 listed the current Gunnery qualification badges for the ship-based gunnery:

Qualification	Badge	Type

GO 24 in 1927 introduced Khaki on Khaki Drill versions for the Gunnery badges except Rangetakers, however in 1928 GO18 described that Khaki on Khaki Drill versions for Rangetakers were also introduced.

In 1926 the RN Clothing etc and Issuing Prices, AFO 1342/26 14/5/1926, listed the Gunner's Mates, Gunlayers 1st and 2nd Class, Seaman Gunners, Rangetakers 1st, 2nd and 3rd Class as active RN Gunnery Rates with gold, red and blue versions of the badges.

On 11/3/1927, AFO 643/27 described that Captain of Gun 1st and 2nd Class replaced Gunlayers 1st and 2nd Class at the turret guns of battleships and battle cruisers. Captain of Gun 1st and 2nd Class were open to Leading Seaman and higher rates, and RM Corporals and Sergeants. The Turret Director Layer and Light Director Layer were replaced by Director Layer 1st and 2nd Class respectively.

AFO 2738/27 4/11/1927 described the new badges for Captain of Gun 1st Class, single gun, with a star above and two stars below and Captain of Gun 2nd Class single gun with a star above and a star below.

1930-1941

On 14/3/1930 AFO 456/30 introduced the non-substantive rating of Q.G. (Qualified in Gunnery) to the Royal Marines, for Royal Marines ranks below Corporal, which was equivalent of the Royal Navy Seaman Gunner rate. The designation "Q.M." was no longer to be used.

AFO 445/32 19/2/1932, describes the badges of Captains of Gun 1st and 2nd Class, as having three variations; Khaki on Khaki, Khaki on Khaki Drill and Scarlet on Blue. However the Gunlayers 1st and 2nd Class, Gunner's Mates and Rangetakers 1st, 2nd and 3rd Class as only having two variations, Khaki on Khaki, and Khaki on Khaki Drill.

On 20/5/1932 AFO 1217/32 the Gunner's mate badge was changed from crossed guns crown and star above and star below to crossed guns, crown above and star below.

Old Gunner's Mate Badge

New Gunner's Mate Badge

AFO 826/35 4/4/1935 announced a simplification of the Gunnery ratings. The Gunlayer 1st Class rate was to be allowed to die out and there would only be one class for Gunlayers. There was to be an increase in Director Layers to handle the demise of the Gunlayers 1st Class. Also the Rangetaker 3rd Class rate would be abolished. Therefore as result of the simplification AFO 1595/35 4/7/1935 describes the badges worn as the following: Director Layer crossed guns star above and star below, Gunlayer, Crossed guns with star above, Rangetaker 1st Class, rangefinder with star above and star below, and Rangetaker 2nd Class, rangefinder with star above.

AFO 1219/38 of 19/5/1938 described the RN Gunnery rates as Captain of Gun 1st and 2nd Class, Gunner's Mate, Director Layer (old Gunlayer 1st Class), Gunlayer, Seaman Gunner (RM Qualified in Gunnery), and Rangetaker 1st and 2nd Class.

On 14/7/1938 AFO 1678/38, the Royal Navy re-organized the Gunnery Ratings. Except for Gunner's Mates and Gunnery Instructors, (RM) the following four sections were created:

1. Quarters section – Gun numbers and in charge of guns (except close range A.A. guns), magazines and shell rooms.
2. Layer Section – Gun and director laying and training (except at close-range A.A. equipment)
3. Control Section – Range finding and Control of Fire (except A.A.)
4. Anti-Aircraft Section (Seaman only) – A.A. lookout, loading, laying and training at close-range A.A. equipment, control of A.A. fire.

Each section was divided into three “grades” or classes. The lowest was 3rd Class; the 2nd Class corresponded to Gunlayer and Rangetaker 2nd Class. The 1st Class, Gunner’s Mate and Gunnery Instructor RM all had the same grade.

The 1st Class rates, Gunner’s Mate, Gunnery Instructors RM, were allowed to be held by Chief and Petty Officers, colour Sergeants and Sergeants, Leading Seaman passed for Petty Officer and Corporals passed for Sergeants. The 2nd Class rates in the Quarters and A.A. Sections may only be held by Able Seaman provided they have passed for Leading Seaman, and in the Quarters Section by Marines provided they have passed for Corporal.

As a result of AFO 1678/38 and RM Circular 367/38.Q of the 6th January 1939, describes the three main categories (Quarter, Layer and Control Rating) of RN gunnery badges to be worn by Royal Marines. Even though AFO 1678/38 defines that a Layer Rating 1st Class is a qualification for Royal Marines RM Circular 376/38.Q does not mention a badge being issued for wear by the Royal Marines.

The badges described in the RM Circular are:

Quarter Rating:

QR1

QR2

QR3

Layer Rating:

LR2

LR3

No LR1 Rating

Control Rating:

CR1

CR2

CR3

RM Circular 367/38.Q also states that Gunnery Instructors would continue to wear their existing badges, but there doesn't appear to be any references as to the description of the badge. Typically Gunnery Instructors were shored based, as the title suggests performed instruction on various RN gunnery specializations.

AFO 876/39 30/3/1939 describes that the Quarters Rating, Layer Ratings, Control rating and Anti-Aircraft Ratings have Gold, Red and Blue variations.

AFO 2227/41 22/5/1941 Clothing Allowance continues to describe Royal Navy badges for Director Layer (old Gunlayer 1st Class) and Rangetaker 1st Class.

AFO 3297/41 31/7/1941 defines that the Gunlayer badge (Crossed guns with star above) is now obsolete.

1943-1950

On 15 July 1943, AFO 3210/43, described the Quarters Rating 2nd Class and 3rd Class badges were to be incorporated with the letters D.E.M.S. (Defensively Equipped Merchant Ships) for wear by D.E.M.S. rating qualified as Acting Gunlayers and Acting Seaman gunners respectively. The Acting Gunlayer D.E.M.S. badges was Crossed guns with star above with letter Q and latter DEMS below, and the Acting Seaman Gunner D.E.M.S Single Gun with star above and letter Q and letters DEMS below. Both badges were issues in Red and blue, AFO 5523/43, 18/11/1943.

Acting Gunlayer D.E.M.S.

Acting Seaman Gunner D.E.M.S.

On 21/10/1943, AFO 4936/43 Anti-Aircraft Non-Substantive rates were introduced for Royal Marines. AFO 3815/44, 20/7/1944 confirmed the Royal Marines rates were for AA1 and AA2.

AA1

AA2

AFO 7155/46, 13/12/1946 indicated that as the new Gunnery rates are in place Royal Marine Rangetaker rate is to die out and be replaced by Royal Marine Control Ratings.

On 9/1/1948, AFO 120/48 the Quarters Armourer specialisation was introduced for the Seaman Branch and Royal Marines. The role of the Quarter Armourer's was specially trained in the maintenance of gunnery equipment. The badge for Quarter's Armourer was that same other Gunnery ratings, but with the letters "QA" beneath. Also the Quarters Armourer's have the classed 1st, 2nd and 3rd.

RMRO 48/49 of 28th January 1949 mentions the urgent need for volunteers for gunnery courses; Quarters Rating 1 and 2, Layer Rating 2 and 3, Quarters Armourer 2 and 3 and Anti-Aircraft 1, 2 and 3. This confirms the announcement of the Anti-Aircraft non-substantive rate (AFO 4936/43) and Quarters Armourer rate (AFO 120/48) being available to Royal Marines. However, it also indicates that the Anti-Aircraft 3rd Class rate was now available to Royal Marines which it was not as of AFO 4936/43.

1950-1960

On 28/9/1950, AFO 2847/50 and on 6/7/1951, AFO 2303/51 the Royal Navy instituted the specialist qualification of Control Armourer and the amalgamation of the Anti-Aircraft and Layer Rating specialist qualifications. The Control Armourer qualification had three classes 1st (CA1), 2nd (CA2) and 3rd (CA3). The role of a Control Armourer was instituted in order to meet their requirements for the maintenance of modern fire control equipment.

Also the Anti-Aircraft and Layer Rating specialist qualifications were amalgamated to become the Gunlayer (GL) specialist qualification.

The AFO 3012/51 31/8/1951 indicated that the distinguishing letters on badges for Gunlayer and Control Armourer would be "L" and "CA" respectively, and the normal crossed guns and Crown and star to denote class of specialization.

The AFO 2573/51 27/7/1951 listed the naval gunnery ratings. This was the introduction of classifying badges by the five-digit vocabulary (Vocab.) number rather than the Pattern number (N.nn). The first two digits of the vocab number indicate colour: 31-gold, 32-red, 33-Blue, and 34-Gold for wear by CPO's on cuff of white uniform. The following examples illustrate the arrangement of the complete vocabulary numbers: -

Gunnery Instructors:

• C.P.O.	Gold in pairs for blue uniform	31012
• C.P.O.	Red in pairs for blue uniform	32012
• C.P.O.	Blue in pairs for blue uniform	33012

• P.O. or Leading Rate	Red, single for white uniform	32013
• P.O. or Leading Rate	Blue, single for white uniform	33013

The last three digits indicate the rating from which the badge is for.

AFO 1231/56, 11/5/1956, AFO 530 1/3/1957 and RMRO 330/56 describes the new Royal Marine Gunnery badges.

The revised structure for Royal Marines Gunnery specialization was as follows:

The Marine Gunner (Quarters) M.G.(Q) and (Control) M.G.(C) was the equivalent of the Royal Navy specializations Seaman Gunner (Quarters) and (Control). The 'star' was added in same manner as Seaman Gunners, described in AFO 472/56, 24/2/1956. On successfully completing the Basic S.Q. Course at the Specialist School the New Entry trainee was awarded the appropriate S.Q. badge consisting of the basic badge of the Branch only. The Marine at this stage will have little if any experience of their S.Q. duties, and will usually less skilled than the present marine with a 3rd Class S.Q. Accordingly, nine months after completing the Basic S.Q. Course, the basic trained Marine will be examined by the ship's or squadron's Officers in the specialist proficiency and, if the Commanding Officer is then satisfied that the Marine is competent to carry out the duties of the S.Q., the Marine will be awarded a star to the Basic S.Q. badge. This event was known as 'starring'.

Royal Marines could not be qualified or employed as Fire Control Armourers.

Quarters Armourer's and Marine Gunner (Quarters) were responsible for the operation and mechanical maintenance of guns and mountings 3 inch and above.

Gunlayer Armourer's and Marine Gunner (Control) were responsible for the operation and mechanical maintenance of guns and mountings below 3 inch and all gun directors.

AFO 530/57, 1/3/1957 details that the Gunlayer Armourer (1st & 2nd Class) and Marine Gunner (Q & star and C & star) badges are available.

RMRO 199/58 and RMRO 200/58, 16/6/1958 and AFO 1506/58, 20/6/1958 detailed that "No new RM Gunnery SQ's will be trained". Also, "RM manned Quarters will be retained as long as possible by making use of the existing RM Gunnery Branch".

1961-1974

AFO 1363/61, 23/6/1961 indicated the Marine Gunner (C) and Marine Gunner (Q) have been combined into a single course giving the specialist qualification of Marine Gunner (MG). Marines qualifying in the future as Marine Gunner's are to wear the badge worn by present Marine Gunners (Q), the letter indicating "Qualified" instead of "Quarters".

RMRO 121/61, 21/4/1961, discontinued the Marine Gunner MG(C) and MG(Q) qualifications and introduced the Marine Gunner (MG) qualification. AFO 2316/62, 30/11/1962, describes the two new Gunnery badges which were introduced, with letters 'C' and 'Q' removed.

It is unclear when the RM Gunnery badges were discontinued in official documentation, but they were not mentioned in the 1976 RM Dress regulations amendment.

Gunnery badges introduced in 1962 but only worn by the Royal Navy:

Gunlayer 1st Class
(CPO with 1st Class Qualification)

Quarter Rating 1st Class
(CPO without 1st Class Qualification)

Quarter Rating 2nd Class
